To APPROACH that most august tribunal, The Public, before which the most kingly pride must conceal an autions awe, or more nobly confess an humble reverence, is ever an autions awe, or more nobly confess an humble reverence, is ever an occasion of deep concern. In our common country there are among men more or less conmored with its politics a numerous class who feel a distante, for those tempted to cupley them; who are deterred from active support of sound principles of government by a dislike of the provailing means;

who find their sentiments but ico-by reflected by the popular press and who apprehend as a consequence a serious stemoralization of political principles and private virtue. It is for such that this publication is proposed.

The general neglect of a duty, however high, authorizes the most unassuming to attempt the performance of it. That a publication of this character is needed, the public has probably as little doubt as the projector. Whether he shall be capable of supplying the want, he no better than the public at this stage of the experiment could determine. It is acknowledged with regret that a political magicine offered to the public as an exemplar of absolute candor would be it to be singular. The following opinions are held upon general consistency of season:

That the "policy" of parties and politicians is not according to the principles of right and wrong; that the great press of the country, almost exclusively political, maintains the system by action and by acquiescence; that the pursuit of office is the paramount evil of the day; that there is in the public mind a dargorous complication of established political axioms; that in some instances men of acknowledged deprayity have been country abounds with wise and virtuous near whose obscurity is a public loss, who would be called by the people to their service if there was any practicable method of selecting them; that every attempt to this end in the nature of organized reform parties has failed and must continue to fail through the anneances that produce the evil," &c.

The following convictions, among others, have been adopted for advocacy, with abilities yet untried, but with an artless and resolute candor which it is hoped will not altogether disappoint confidence:

The virtue of the people is the only source of order. Public sensor.

Missass. O. J. Wood & Co. Gentlemen: Having heard a good deal about Professor Wood's Hair Restorative, and my hair being quite gray, I made up my mind to by aside the prejudices which I, in common with a great many persons, bad against all manner of patent medicines, and a short time ago I commenced using your article to test it for myself.

The result has been so very sali-factory that I am very glad I did so, and in justice to you, as well as for the encouragement of others who may be as gray as I was, but who having my neciodic.

Y. Wire Ralling establishment every day.

My hair is now its natural color, and much improved in appearance every way, being glossier and thicker, and much more healthy looking. I am yours, respectfully, PROF. WOOD—Dear Sir: Your Hair Restorative has done much good in this part of the constry. My hair has been slightly diminishing for several years, caused, I suppose, from a slight burn when I was quite an infant. I have been using your Hair Restorative for six weeks and I ind that I have a fine head of hair now growing, after having used all other remedies known to no effect. I think it the most valuable remedy now extant, and advise all who are afflicted that way to use your remedy. a remory new values, see your remedy.

You can publish this if you think proper.

THE WASHINGTON CHILDREN'S MISSION THE LADIES of the First Unitarian Church, moved by the sad condition of a large number of poor children in Wachington, thave commenced a mission, the object of which is to rescue from the streets and alleys of the worst neighborhoods as many as possible of that number who, either by the misfortune, guilt, or negligence of their parents, or from causes incident to the maperfectures of human society, are growing up to swell the ranks of "the dangerous classes" of American cities.

They have rented and furnished suitable rooms in the Fearth world. the dangerous classes" of American cities.

They have rented and furnished suitable rooms in the Fourth ward, employed a teacher, and are daily receiving children, who, coming from abodes of poverty, and often worse than poverty, by being surrounded during the day with a Christian atmosphere of kindness and forbearance, and being taught the common elementary branches of education, will be seen to the common elementary branches of education, will be seen to the common elementary branches of education, will be seen to the common elementary branches of education, will be seen to the common elementary branches of education, will be seen to the common elementary branches of education, will be seen to the common elementary branches of education, will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary be seen to the common elementary branches of education will be seen to the common elementary between the common elementary branches and the common elementary branches are the com forbearance, and being taught the common elementary branches of education, will be saved from great peril, and some of them, it is hoped, become very useful men and women.

Very frequently it is found necessary to supply shoes or other essential garments, and if the means could be obtained it would be desirable to furnish one plain, but sufficient meal per diem during the approaching winter. Being constantly under our supervision—except at night—the chances for imposition are very much lessened; it is certain, moreover, that nothing can be wasted which gives to children the power to read the fible and the constitution, or feeds and warms them, even though their parents should prove unworthy.

We submit the following considerations to the benevolent. That it is the duty of all good Citristians and all good citizens to take good care of the young, because nothing can be more dangerons in a republic than the presence of lawless bands of youths:

That there is not sufficient public school accommodation for the poor children of Washington: a fact too notorious to need demonstration. And, if there were, still the same necessity would exist for comming those from danger who, from the poverty or neglect of their parents, would not seek educational advantages;

That it is only by direct effort among the poor, by personal appeal to them, and personal sacrifice for them that we can hope to clear our city of violence and rowdyism; and that a proper Christian zeal-and courage can accomplish this great purpose is fully evidenced in the past and present condition of "The Five Founts" in New York.

We have no hesitation, therefore, in asking pecuniary aid from all crosses disposed to help what seems to us to be so good a mission. We pledge ourselves to the observance of a rigid economy, and our benefactors may feel assured that every dollar will go directly to the object, and that none of our funds will be absorbed in payment of salaries to secretaries, clerks, agents, &c.
